The Cyber Privacy Project (CPP) submits these comments in response to the notice and request for comments, “Intent To Request Approval From OMB of One New [sic] Public Collection of Information: Certification of Identity Form (TSA Form 415)”, docket number TSA-2013-0001-0075, FR Doc. 2016-26958, published at 81 Federal Register 78624-78625 (November 8, 2016).

I. INTRODUCTION

“Big Brother in the form of an increasingly powerful government and in an increasingly powerful private sector will pile the records high with reasons why privacy should give way to national security...”

- Justice William O. Douglas

Almost 50 years ago, Justice William O. Douglas, an associate just of the Supreme Court of the United States warned us of the potential for the federal government to impinge on our individual privacy rights. With any policy that impinges in civil liberties, we must balance the restriction of personal liberties with the benefit of increased personal safety. In this case, we believe this policy goes too far.

II. ABOUT THE CYBER PRIVACY PROJECT

A. Cyber Privacy Project

The Cyber Privacy Project (“CPP”) is a non-partisan organization focusing on governmental intrusions against Fourth and Fifth Amendment rights of privacy, particularly in government databanks and national identification schemes for voting, travel and work, and on medical confidentiality and patient consent. CPP director Richard Sobel is a scholar of identity issues, has authored law review articles on the subject, and was an amicus with Privacy Activism in Hiibel v. Sixth Judicial District of Humboldt County, 542 U.S. 177. (2004), and with the Program in Psychiatry and Law at Harvard Medical School in Citizens for Health v. Leavitt, 428

F.3d 167 (3d Cir. 2005), cert. denied, 127 S. Ct. 43 (Oct. 2, 2006). He has taught a course on “The Supreme Court and Privacy,” including identification issues.

B. The Constitutional Alliance

The Constitutional Alliance is an organization that was established to protect citizens against mandated biometric enrollment. The Constitutional Alliance recognizes that biometrics is the linchpin of a surveillance state which undermines the First, Fourth, and Fifth Amendments to the U.S. Constitution. The Constitutional Alliance is an organization comprised of state/national groups, state legislators, ministries and private citizens. Mark Lerner is the Co-Founder and Spokesperson for the Constitutional Alliance.

III. THE REAL ID ACT IS UNLIKELY TO ACHIEVE ITS STATED GOAL.

The TSA states: “Secure driver's licenses and identification documents are a vital component of the Department of Homeland Security's (DHS's) national security strategy. In particular, preventing terrorists from obtaining state-issued identification documents is critical to securing the United States against terrorism.”

The stated goal of the TSA is to increase the nation's security through the implementation of the REAL ID Act. However, there is no logical connection between the use of the “REAL ID” for domestic travel and the prevention of terrorist activity.

Given the low probability of successfully preventing a security breach through Real IDs as opposed to more effective forms of intelligence gathering and law enforcement, the TSA is impinging upon a major right of travelers.

IV. THE REAL ID ACT VIOLATES THE CONSTITUTIONALLY PROTECTED RIGHTS OF INDIVIDUALS AS WELL AS THE STATES THEMSELVES.

The Congressional Research Service Report of 2008 notes, there are many Constitutional issues that REAL ID raises: 10th amendment, federalism and anti-commandeering; freedom of travel, religious freedom against impose of digital photographs, and unfunded mandates on the states.

A. The REAL ID Act Violates Individuals' Rights.

Chief Justice Melville Fuller, in Williams v. Fears (1900):

"... Undoubtedly, the right of locomotion, the right to remove from one place to another according to inclination, is an attribute of personal liberty, and the right, ordinarily, of free transit from or through the territory of any State is a right secured by the Fourteenth Amendment and by other provisions of the Constitution. ..."

(U.S. Constitution, Amendment 1):

"Congress shall make no law ... abridging ... the right of the people peaceably to assemble"

(Universal Declaration of Human Rights, Article 13):

"Everyone has the right to freedom of movement and residence within the borders of each state. Everyone has the right to leave any country, including his own, and to return to his country."

(United Nations Human Rights Committee, General Comment No. 27):

"Liberty of movement is an indispensable condition for the free development of a person."

The mere assertion that the TSA seeks to provide additional security to passengers does not provide adequate justification for abridgement of constitutional rights of the individual.

B. The REAL ID Act Violates States' Rights.

(U.S. Constitution, Amendment 10):

"The powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the States, are reserved to the States respectively, or to the people."

The states have police powers granted to them under the 10th Amendment of the U.S.

Constitution. This is not a federal power, and hence the TSA's imposition of Real ID requirements unconstitutionally violates constitutional principles of federalism and anti-commandeering.

Additionally, the imposition of this rule by the TSA would amount to an unfunded mandate which would violate the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act which was approved in 1995.

V. CONCLUSION

In short, based on the fact that the REAL ID Act is unlikely to achieve its stated goal, that it violates the constitutionally protected rights of individuals as well as the states themselves, and saddles the state governments with an unfunded mandate at a time when most state governments cannot afford it, this proposal should be denied in its entirety.

Respectfully submitted,

Cyber Privacy Project (CPP)

Subject: submission of comment for Intent To Request Approval From OMB of One New Public Collection of Information: Certification of Identity Form (TSA Form 415)

The Pennsylvania Department of Transportation offers the following comments in reference to TSA's request for comment for "Intent To Request Approval From OMB of One New Public Collection of Information: Certification of Identity Form (TSA Form 415)."

- 1) TSA indicates that Form 415 will be updated so that "it is generally only available to travelers who certify that they: reside in or have been issued a driver's license or state identification card by a state that is compliant with the Real ID Act or a state that has been granted an extension by DHS; or have been issued another verifying identity document that TSA accepts." The Pennsylvania Department of Transportation believes there would be inequitable treatment among the residents of states that issue REAL ID compliant products and those states that do not. Even though an individual may reside in a state that issues REAL-ID compliant products, that state may have an opt-in process. As a result, the person may hold a non-compliant product from a compliant state and may be able to use the TSA form; however, a resident from a non-compliant state who holds a similar non-compliant product cannot use the TSA Form 415.

From a legal point of view, there does not appear to be any rational distinction between a resident of a state who has been issued a Real ID non-compliant product and a resident of a state that does not issue Real ID-compliant products at all. As such, TSA's proposal would appear to deny equal protection to similarly situated residents in different states. The department asks TSA to reconsider its policies and procedures related to TSA Form 415 to ensure equitable treatment.

Additionally, clarification is being sought regarding the statement that the form will be "...generally only available to travelers who certify that they: reside in or have been issued a driver's license or state identification card by a state that is compliant with the Real ID Act or a state that has been granted an extension by DHS; or have been issued another verifying identity document that TSA accepts..." The term "generally" seems to indicate that there would be some exceptions where the form would be used. Can TSA clarify when the form may be used by residents of non-compliant states who have not been issued another acceptable form of ID from the TSA list of acceptable identity documents?

- 2) The link contained at the end of the first paragraph under the heading "Information Collection Requirement" to access the list of acceptable verifying documents appears to be invalid. After clicking the link, the user is taken to a TSA webpage that indicates "Page Not Found." We believe "https://www.tsa.gov/sites/default/files/resources/realid_factsheet.pdf" to be the correct link.

Please contact me if you have any questions.

United States Department of Homeland Security

Transportation Security Administration

[Docket No. DHS-2016-26958]

Intent To Request Approval From OMB of One New Public Collection of Information:
Certification of Identity Form (TSA Form 415)

Keeping IDentities Safe (KIDS) submits the following comments in response to the Transportation Security Administration's new Information Collection Request (ICR).

Background

Keeping IDentities Safe is a 501(c)(3), non-partisan, not for profit, crime prevention, educational charity based in Washington, D.C. Its central purpose is to raise awareness that weak state systems for issuing driver's licenses and IDs increase the risk from terrorists and criminals who can fraudulently assume new identities to escape detection by law enforcement. Keeping IDentities Safe also educates and encourages parents to secure their children's identities, as well as provides information on the risks under age persons incur when using a counterfeit or fraudulently obtained ID.

Keeping IDentities Safe supports continued enforcement and implementation the federal REAL ID Act rules, and enforcement of the act by the federal government. The REAL ID Act prohibits federal agencies from accepting driver's licenses and state issued identification cards that do not meet certain standards. The REAL ID standards, published in 2008, reduce the risk of identity theft and fraud through the adoption of best practices.

Confirming the identity of travelers prior to boarding an aircraft is a vital component of aviation security. As the 9/11 Commission stated, "At many entry points to vulnerable facilities, including gates of boarding aircraft, sources of identification are the last opportunity to ensure that people are who they say they are and to check whether they are terrorists."¹ The 9/11 Commission Report recommended that the federal government set standards for driver's licenses. 50 states, five territories, and the District of Columbia each issue driver's licenses each under different authorities and processes, largely independent of each other. Prior to passage of the REAL ID Act, the federal government exercised minimal regulation regarding the issuance of driver's licenses, with the exception of regulations pertaining to HAZMAT and Commercial Driver's Licenses and the Driver's Privacy Protection Act. Subsequent REAL ID rules created metrics for the federal government to define the components and characteristics pertinent to the security of a state's driver's license and its reliability as a proof of identity. These metrics and the states' certification of compliance reports provide a basis for the U.S. Department of Homeland Security to determine whether or not it is acceptable for "official purposes."²

Keeping IDentities Safe endorses the Department's efforts to enforce the REAL ID Act throughout the United States, and especially by the Transportation Security Agency's (TSA) review of passenger credentials at airports. Currently, TSA treats every driver's license as the same. There is no review of the physical security features nor the application and adjudication process employed by the states to issue driver's licenses and identification cards.

REAL ID enforcement will be the first time TSA agents differentiate driver's licenses to segregate non-compliant states from the majority of compliant states. This notice suggests that TSA anticipates an alternate process for airline travelers who present driver's licenses as proof of identity that were issued by states non-compliant with REAL ID requirements.

Many questions remain regarding how REAL ID will be enforced at the airports. How will travelers be notified at the airports in advance of the scheduled January 2018 enforcement? What kind of signage will precede enforcement and subsequently be posted at airports? Have notices been sent to the airlines so they can notify passengers to bring alternate identification if they do not possess a REAL ID compliant driver's license or ID? What kind of additional personnel will be needed to account for the number of travelers who present noncompliant identification at the airport?

TSA's notice does provide some insight into one part of enforcement: what process would TSA use to confirm the identity of travelers who present driver's licenses from noncompliant states. According to the notice, TSA plans on using knowledge based authentication based on commercial and government databases to confirm the identity of travelers.

Comments

Capture Documentation

If documentation is presented, TSA should capture the documentation presented via electronic scan. Should a crime be committed, the scan of the identification presented would provide value to an investigation.

Verifying the validity of noncompliant licenses

The REAL ID standards are intended to mitigate the risk that an individual will present fraudulent identification to assume or create a new identity. However, there is some identity management value that can be attached to a noncompliant license. Statutorily, it is only insufficient for "official purposes." TSA should use the noncompliant driver's license, in part, to verify the holder's identity. There are systems that allow for the verification of a limited data set, such as full name, date of birth, and most importantly, the document number of the driver's license.

Knowledge based authentication

The notice states that TSA uses knowledge based authentication to verify the identity of a traveler who cannot or will not present sufficient proof of identity at the screening checkpoint. According to DRAFT National Institute of Standards and Technology (NIST) Special Publication 800-63A Digital Authentication Guideline Enrollment and Identity Proofing, using knowledge based authentication as the only means of verifying an identity ranks as "adequate." Given the continued risk to aviation security and the growing availability of complete online identity packages via the Dark Web and Tor networks, we recommend that TSA utilize a multi-factor method of identity verification. According to the NIST standard, a "superior" level of identity verification includes the use of biometrics. Given that the traveler would be submitting only biographic information via a form, TSA should phase in the collection of physical data including a front facial image and fingerprints. If the passenger has been previously enrolled in a federal program, biometric technology can seek to confirm the identity of a traveler. It may also be used to compare that facial image and fingerprints against various watch lists to check for known or suspected terrorists as well as for outstanding wants and warrants.

The knowledge based authentications completed by TSA's Identity Verification Call Center should be conducted consistent with the DRAFT NIST Special Publication 800-63A Digital Authentication Guideline Enrollment and Identity Proofing Requirements. Section 5.3.2. "Knowledge Based Verification Requirements" includes minimum standards for the use of knowledge based verification.

Hi All,

Thanks for getting on the call today to discuss the 5 comments to the 60-day notice for 1652-NEW Certification of Identity (TSA Form 415). Also, Laura was able to get us the additional 2 comments from Regulations.gov. I have attached them to this email as Comments 6 and 7. Both comments were anonymous.

Nathan,

(b)(5)

Tim,

(b)(5)

Katrina,

Comment 6 is asking that the ICR be withdrawn because the commenter wasn't able to see the form.

(b)(5)

Nathan & Laura,

(b)(5)

(b)(5)

I will send out an invite for February 23, 2017 to discuss the finalization of the responses to the comments.

Dear OMB -

44 USC 3517(b)(1) required that you "respond to the request within 60 days after receiving the request, unless such period is extended by the Director to a specified date and the person making the request is given notice of such extension".

Our request was sent November 25, 2016; the 60 day deadline was January 24, 2017, almost a month ago. I've received no response.

Please let me know your ETA, or your formal extension notice. I look forward to receiving your response to the coalition's letter.

As mentioned in the letter, please respond only by email, preferably as a § 508 compliant PDF.

Sincerely,
Sai

OCC only,

Attached are my revisions to the October 24 clean version of the document. Please review and let me know if you would like to discuss anything. Please do not make additional comments on top of mine at this point. If we need to make changes, let's have a quick meeting. I want to go back to Christina Walsh (and Howard Goldman and Scott Houston) with just one consolidated markup from OCC.

Thanks,

MEMORANDUM FOR: Lee Kair
Chief of Mission Support (Acting)
Transportation Security Administration

FROM: Russell Roberts, CIO (Acting) RR 2/28/17
Assistant Administrator
Office of Information Technology (OIT)

SUBJECT: Paperwork Reduction Act (PRA), Information Collection Request (ICR):
1652-NEW Certification of Identity Form (TSA Form 415)

Overview: Effective January 22, 2018, the REAL ID Act will be implemented at airport security screening checkpoints. Starting on that day, TSA will not accept state-issued driver's licenses and other state-issued identification cards from states that are not compliant with REAL ID Act requirements unless DHS has granted the state a temporary extension to achieve compliance. In anticipation of the implementation of the Real ID Act, the Administrator's Office along with the Office of Security Operations (OSO) revised TSA Form 415 to assist travelers who do not have identification cards compliant with the REAL ID Act.

The revised form triggered the requirements of the Paperwork Reduction Act (PRA) and in July 2016, the Office of Information Technology (OIT) began working with a PRA team on a new Information Collection Request (ICR), 1652-NEW Certification of Identity Form (TSA Form 415), to the Office of Management and Budget (OMB). The ICR documents were drafted, including the 60-day notice. On November 8, 2016, the 60-day notice was published in the Federal Register, alerting the public of the intent to do the collection. TSA received unfavorable comments from prior litigants of TSA.

It looks like Roxana (or maybe Nathan), who I inadvertently left off when I sent the email originally, might have made that edit, so we can try to address the formatting issue for you tomorrow when she's back in the office. I'm sorry about that!

It may be a formatting issue. When I open it up in the "Final Showing Markup" view it is NOT there, I kid you not. When I switch to "Final" view it is there. I thought it was perhaps because I blew up the viewing screen so my bad eyes could see better, but when I shrink it down it still doesn't appear in the markup version. I can't explain it but I can see it in "Final".

That is odd. I just opened it again and I see it. I'm reattaching in case was there a glitch with how it was sent before.

It's actually pretty strange. (b)(5) is there when I open it, but doesn't appear when Howard opens the same document.

Bizarrely, it's not in the version on my screen that I opened. Scott was looking over my shoulder to verify that I am not making this up! He has it on some version. I can't explain that.
